

REMARKS

Claims 1-20 are pending in the application and the same are rejected. Claims 1-20 remain in the application and are presented for review and further consideration by the Examiner.

The Examiner has rejected claims 1-20 under 35 U.S.C. §102(e) as being anticipated by Arellano, et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,694,482. (Examiner's Action, page 3, ¶ 7).

Applicant respectfully disagrees.

Arellano discloses a user modeling subsystem including a User model editor (col. 6, lines 31-34). The "User model editor allows the end user and/or administrator to specify the user's interest along with a measure of confidence." (Col. 6, lines 31-34). "The User model editor is an administrative tool that allows a user and/or administrator to modify a user model." (Col. 12, lines 45-49).

Arellano does not disclose the User model editor presenting, for selection, a user model, a user's data, or anything else. The Examiner points out that the User model editor allows the user to specify the user's interests, but allowing a user to specify the user's interests does not necessarily include presenting, for selection, user's interests.

Merely disclosing specification of user's interests and modification of user models does not constitute a disclosure of presenting frequently used delivery instructions for selection. There is no indication in Arellano that the User model editor presents, for selection, instructions of any kind. There is not even an indication that the User model editor presents, for selection, anything to the user.

Nowhere in Arellano is there a disclosure that the user is presented with any delivery instructions from which to select. Therefore, there is no disclosure of frequently used delivery instructions, associated with a particular user, being presented for selection by the user.

In contrast, Applicant's independent claims 1, 8, and 15 include wording that frequently used delivery instructions associated with the particular user are presented for selection by the particular user. Arellano does not disclose presenting any delivery instructions for selection by a user.

In view of Applicant's arguments and amendments with respect to independent claims 1, 8, and 15 being allowable, Applicant respectfully submits that the remaining dependent claims are also allowable because they contain all of the limitations of their respective independent claims and further add structural and functional limitations.

The foregoing amendments and arguments are believed to be a complete response to the most recent Examiner's Action.

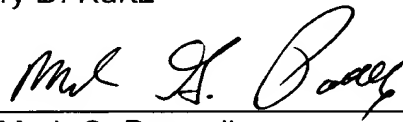

No new matter has been added.

It is respectfully submitted that there is no claim, teaching, motivation, or suggestion in any of the prior art cited, alone or in combination, to produce what Applicant claims.

It is further submitted that the application, as amended, defines patentable subject matter and that the claims are in a condition for allowance. Such allowance at an early date is respectfully requested.

Should any issues remain which would preclude the prompt disposition of this case, it is requested that the Examiner contact the undersigned practitioner by telephone.

Respectfully submitted,
Barry D. Kurtz
